Terry Pratchett's
MORT

An amateur production by arrangement with Discworld®
Adapted by Stephen Briggs

Directed by Kevin O'Donnell

Terry Pratchett is Britain's leading novelist. He was awarded the OBE in 1998 and has written nearly 30 Discworld novels. He says he 'doesn't want to get a life as he feels he's trying to lead three already'.

Mort was my favourite book, and when realising it was superbly adapted by Stephen Briggs and available for the amateur stage I just had to do it. I really wanted to be in it and not cast anyone else, but as I didn't hold the budget and couldn't pull an audience for a one man show, I thought directing it would be the next best thing. Please enjoy, and if you don't like it, it wasn't me, OK?!

Death comes to us all, when he came to Mort he offered him a job! Mort is left in charge for an evening, and allows his heart to rule his head and soon the whole of causality and the Discworld itself are at risk. Along the way he meets Ysabelle, Death's adopted daughter; Albert his mysterious manservant, an incompetent wizard and a beautiful, but rather bad tempered and dead princess. He also, of course, meets Death!

The setting is Discworld, Terry Pratchett's amazing creation which although different from our world, has some striking similarities. As an audience you have to open your mind. The time is irrelevant (and indeed unknown). It is your imagination which will be challenged. Enjoy!
